Know Your Rights Under the Law

You worked hard all your life. And then the unexpected happened. Now what?

Your friend or loved one is having problems with their disability claim. What should they do?

There are many ways to protect yourself and your family if you are injured or disabled. But, if you don't understand your rights, or are confused by the choices available, you may not receive the benefits and services you're entitled to.

That's where the Injured Worker Advisory Program fits in. We are committed to helping you obtain what is rightfully yours under the law. Period. No strings attached. No hidden agendas. And no complicated red tape.

Best of all, the Injured Worker Advisory Program is not affiliated with any government agency, union or labour group. Our only accountability is to you, our client. As a result, we're not going to compromise any settlement because of backroom deals or conflicting priorities. We help you get the maximum you're entitled to under the law.

What You Don't Know Can Cost You

Reality check: the only thing you should be focused on when you're injured or disabled is getting better. Not dealing with some mindless bureaucracy that treats you as a case number instead of a person.

Why face it alone? The Injured Worker Advisory Program puts a team of specialists to work for you. We're not ex-bureaucrats or board members; we're a team of paid professionals. Collectively, we understand the various avenues of appeal for injured workers. We also know what's available to you under the law:

- Lost time payments
- Pain and suffering awards
- Wage loss awards
- Health care expenses
- Pensions
- Survivor benefits
- Supplements
- Retraining programs
- Commutations
- Arrears Payments

Experience has taught us an important lesson: don't assume anything. We also know the importance of treating people fairly, with dignity and respect. It's something we never lose sight of when you deal with us.
